Discover the best that nature has to offer in the US Virgin Islands by sailing on Zulu with captain/guide and enthusiastic ecologist – Dee Osinski. Dee has lived on St. Croix for many years and been very involved in coral reef protection.

Her knowledge is diverse and she loves to share it with you. Beyond the reefs she loves to explore on land, and has catered to clients of all ages seeking an “involvement” in the island. Her charters have catered to environmentalist, photographers, bird watchers, snorklers, and simply vacationers eager to relax but wanting to leave with a better understanding of the environment in which they have been traveling. Knowing the islands intimately Dee can make sure that you will get the very best experience that the prevailing weather conditions, & seasonal variations can offer. She will know when the migratory birds are coming in, where and when you may spot a whale, what reef will provide good snorkeling when you are on the boat, and when the corals will be spawning.

She discourages hard set itineraries.

If its windy there will be great sailing and then tuck into a calm anchorage for quiet calm swimming and snorkeling.

If it happens to be dead calm she will grab the opportunity to head off to explore reefs normally not accessible on windy days – If you want a good walk then she knows the trails both long and short to give you the best views , and if you prefer to laze on the boat then nature is still smiling on you and a turtle may pop its head up from time to time just to make sure you are OK.
